FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

With Liberty and Recess for All

Framingham, MA– January 15, 2009 – Congratulations to Max Shepherd, Elizabeth Duross, Samantha Vaccaro, Ashley Desko and Sherley Pagan, fifth grade students and members of the newly launched United Way of Tri-County Youth Venture Team, called Recess for All. These fifth graders, along with the rest of their class, surveyed their peers to learn how to improve recess. After much thought, the Recess for All Team decided to create a business plan that will provide new recess equipment for their school, Marlborough’s Intermediate Elementary .

Recess is a valuable time for most elementary students; however, not all schools have sufficient equipment. Marlboro Intermediate is one of those schools. “Kids just sit around and wait for other kids to finish using equipment. We really think this idea is going to get kids more active,” said Sam Vaccaro, one of Venture Team leaders. The students reported that the little equipment at the school is old, in poor condition, and was purchased with teachers’ own money. The student saw this as a problem that needed to be changed. Emily Murphy, one of the Selection Panel members and the assistant principal at Marlborough Intermediate Elementary School, commented that “When students are active they are healthier and there are fewer disciplinary challenges.”

Recess for All plans to purchase new basketballs, soccer balls, kick-balls, Frisbees, jump ropes and a ball pump, along with other equipment. They also intend to fundraise by selling healthy snacks they make at home to help pay for future equipment and repairs.

The Team formally presented their idea before a Selection Panel of community leaders. The Panelists included Sue Leeber, President and CEO of Marlborough Chamber of Commerce; Karen Kisty, executive aide to the mayor of Marlborough; and Emily Murphy, assistant principal at Intermediate Elementary School. After reviewing the project, the panelists unanimously decided to award the Team a $1,000 Youth Venture grant. “We are so proud of these young people. I’m not surprised that they are so thoughtful and precise in their efforts to help themselves and their peers. The class has a terrific teacher, Trish O’Malley, and with her help and the support of the administration, we hope more students will consider starting youth-led social change initiatives.” said Robyn McLaughlin, the United Way of Tri-County’s Youth Venture coordinator. Recess for All is the first team launched as a result of Youth Venture’s partnership with United Way of Tri-County in Framingham, MA.
